

- (1) Make a synthetic data set consisting of a cluster points with one label, surrounded by a ring of points with a different label.
- (2) Use SVM with a linear kernel to show that it can't separate these points.
- (3) Try the other kernels, which work?
- (4) Can you make a data set which is clearly clustered, but which none of the standard kernels give good results on?